

As a newly qualified nurse I am really excited to start my career at King's because of its national and international reputation for clinical excellence. Being one of only four major trauma centres in London made King's particularly attractive as I am going to be specialising in trauma surgery.

Thomas, Staff Nurse

King's is one of the leading maternity units in London caring for a diverse population of more than 6,000 mothers and babies each year. I cannot express enough what a rewarding, memorable and educational experience I have had so far. I have learnt more than I could ever imagine and I feel very supported in my practice and development. I feel very privileged and proud to be a King's midwife.

Lucy, Midwife

At King's College Hospital NHS Foundation Trust, we care for a diverse local population, which is what makes the Trust a very special place to work. Choosing the right people is a key part of our success. Are you one of those people? Are you ready to be part of Team King's?

King's is a large, busy, acute hospital covering 5 sites across South East London including both our Denmark Hill site and the Princess Royal University Hospital in Farnborough, Kent.

We encourage everyone at the Trust to work together as part of Team King's to ensure we achieve the best in everything we do – now and in the future.

The chance to be a part of our dedicated workforce in a Trust where innovation and the desire to make a difference are key is what attracts people from around the UK and the rest of the world to join King's.

Because we are a provider of local healthcare services as well as a world-class centre for specialist treatment and a leading teaching hospital, we offer employment in a very wide range of clinical and non-clinical roles. Many of these offer you the chance to progress your training and advance your career.
